

A Report on 31st Space Symposium

April 27, 2015

Satellite Business Network

Shigeki Kuzuoka

Translated by Shunsuke Hayashi

© Space Foudation

Table of contents

1. Abstract :	1
2. Items to be Noted :	1
3. Behind the Scene :	1
4. Presentations :	2
5. Exhibitions :	2
Miscellaneous :	2

1. Abstract :

31st Space Symposium, which deals with space satellites and activities, was held in Colorado Springs during 13 to 16, April, 2015. This symposium has provided lecture meetings and exhibitions regarding space satellites and associated equipments in the fields of military, commercial and public. This symposium was hosted by an organization named Space Foundation. The host organization have announced about 10,000 people from 40 countries had joined to this symposium.

2. Items to be Noted :

One could have an impression that this Space Symposium was a festival created by governments and major companies regards to space activities. One could recognize the substances of this symposium if one considers the fact which members joined or not joined, and the fact that which topics were discussed or not discussed.

For more information, please contact to us.

3. Behind the Scene :

4. Presentations :

plane I got on board had been delayed for more than one hour, due to the thunder and lightning. The guy sat on the next seat in the plane had told "This is the April in Colorado".

In the meantime, the next (32th) Space Symposium will be held during April 11 - 14, 2016 in the same Colorado Springs.

For more detail information, please contact to us.

5. Exhibitions :

Miscellaneous :

Broadmoor was the place where this symposium was held. This place is a resort and hotel area which has many historic buildings and a big lake. From Broadmore, one could see beautiful landscapes of white Rocky mountains. The weathers were almost good while the symposium was held, however, snow was falling on the last day of the symposium. Everyone had noticed Broadmoor was mantled in a sheet of white snow in the morning of Thursday. Snow was falling all the day, and guests of the hotel struggled to grab an umbrella that the hotel prepared. In next day (Friday), on my way to back home, a departure time of the first